

Writing Skills Improvement Program

Graduate Writing Groups

Note: We have started offering a limited number of undergraduate writing groups. If you know an undergraduate student who might be interested in joining or forming a group, please have him or her contact us at writingskills@email.arizona.edu.

UA Graduate Students:

Would you like supportive and constructive feedback on a writing project? Do you need help brainstorming, organizing, or developing your ideas? Staying on task? Wrestling with English grammar and/or style?

We provide opportunities for groups of 3-4 graduate students to meet together with a WSIP writing specialist for two hours at a time.

Groups may meet as often as once every two weeks or as infrequently as once or twice per semester. Participants may be from the same or different disciplines, ESL/multilingual or native English speakers, and at any stage of their graduate work.

Graduate Writing Groups are FREE, and you may attend them in addition to seeing us for individual tutoring.

Requirements

You must be:

1. a graduate student registered at the University of Arizona
2. registered with our program (go to this link)
3. working on a writing project (e.g., course paper, proposal, article for publication, thesis, dissertation, etc.)
4. willing and able to honor the stringent absence policy that applies to the writing groups: Only one absence per semester is allowed because the groups are small and all members are essential at each meeting

If you are interested in starting or joining a graduate writing group, please sign up using our online appointment scheduling service here. If you have any questions, please email us at writingskills@email.arizona.edu.
